Open War on Lawless Hunting

Hunters Shoot Pheasant out of Season are Arrested by Will County Game Wardens

The newly organized Eastern Will County Game Protective Association is actively engaged in waging an active campaign against lawless hunting in Frankfort and Green Garden townships. Since the hunting season has opened many foreign hunters from Chicago Heights have been making their appearance in this section. The first arrests were made last Sunday by game wardens Gilbert Knater and Walter Pfaff assisted by deputy sheriff Edward Geuther when they arrested three hunters with two cock pheasants, which they had shot out of season. They were brought to Frankfort and placed in jail until they furnished $500 cash bonds. The same day four young lads were picked up on the charge of shooting on the public highway at the County Line. They had to put up a cash bond of $25 each. The cases of all seven were set for hearing before Justice Frank J. Kohlhaugen last Tuesday, but the cases have been continued until next Tuesday.

On Wednesday of this week the two game wardens were again asked to come to Green Garden and caught two hunters on the Woeltje farm with a hen pheasant in their possession. The hunting season on pheasant was open all right but it is against the law to shoot the hen pheasant. They had to put up a cash bond of $125. The same morning five hunters were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Wm. Knipfle for trespassing on the Kuester farm in Green Garden township. Much interest has been aroused as to the fines that will be assessed when the cases come on next week.

The hunting season opened Nov. 10th and the open season on cock pheasant on the 15th. Under the jurisdiction of the association are being closely watched for game law violations.

The judges have the right to assess fines ranging from $25 to $100 with a jail sentence from 15 to 30 days for game law violations. Oral agreements to permit hunting are not regarded by the game wardens so anyone wishing to hunt legally must first obtain the written permission of the party on whose premises he wishes to hunt.

All violations will be prosecuted to the limit of the law according to attorney A. H. Krusemark, attorney for the association. The big drive is against the foreign hunters who shoot everything in sight and have no regard for the game laws. It is hoped that this campaign is going to make for better sportsmanship and that the hunting laws of the state of Illinois will be upheld to the letter.

All members of the association have placarded their farms forbidding hunting and any trespassing is going to be prosecuted to the limit.

Most of the lawless hunting is done on Sunday. Auto loads of the gay hunters come in this section from Chicago and even such far away points as Gary and Hammond.

If you want to hunt here be sure you have a written permit and know the game laws.

First of the Season

The first heavy snow storm of this season visited this locality early Tuesday morning. A drizzly rain set in Monday and later turned to snow and sleet. The weather wise acres tell us we are to have 25 snow storms this winter.

No Buyers at Parsonage Sale

The sale of the old St. John parsonage property which was held last Saturday was a failure as there were no buyers on hand. There are a number of private buyers interested in the property now so it is probable that it will be sold at private sale.

Fake Schools

It is surprising to pick up any one of the cheap mail order or low class farm journals reaching the small towns and see the number of so-called "correspondence schools" advertising therein. Some of the higher class journals, too, carry advertising they must know is intended only to separate from hard earned dollars the young man or young woman who are anxious to better their condition. They advertise to teach anything from pulling teeth to boring for oil, and always they use the phrase word "Free" in big letters or the catchy slogan, "Send no money". Of course there are some perfectly legitimate schools teaching various courses through the mails, schools that actually benefit those who patronize. But for every one that is honest and legitimate there are dozens that are rank fakes and operated by human sharks and the latter are fast giving the whole lot a bad reputation.

Now comes a Chicago organization of engineers with a campaign to stop the nefarious practice of robbery practiced by the fake mail order schools. The postoffice department is asked to co-operate and so are the mail order publications addicted to running the questionable ads. It is proposed to investigate every one of the so called schools, and unless they can show that they give value received the mails will be denied them and their operators locked up if they persist in carrying on. It is a good move, and one that is not being started a bit too soon.

Mail Delivery on Xmas Day

According to orders from the post office department at Washington, there will be carrier service both city and rural on Christmas Day this year. As Christmas falls on Saturday this year it is pointed out that if there were no delivery on Christmas it would mean a congestion of mail by Monday.

Cows Average $116 at Sale

Farmers throughout eastern Will County and southern Cook County are going back in the dairy business again but with only T. B. tested and high grade cattle. There is a good demand for cattle of this kind as was shown at the Yunker & Hollstein cattle sale on the Hollstein farm near Tinley Park last Tuesday when cattle sold on an average of $116.50 some hitting $140 a head.

Mokena Pastor Surprised on Birthday

Rev. W. J. Cramer of the St. John Evangelical church of Mokena had a birthday last Friday and the members of the Brotherhood of the church becoming aware of the fact, planned and cleverly executed a surprise party in honor of the event and showed they could keep a secret. The members met at the Mokena barbershop and then proceeded to the church. As this was the regular orchestra rehearsal night, the pastor was at the church parlors, but did not suspect anything. The men gathered in an ante room and as the orchestra commenced playing a march the surprise party 55 strong marched in and shouted "surprise". The honored pastor was so surprised he could not think what to say at the spur of the moment. The evening hours passed quickly with a fine social program followed with a big feed. The ladies were not forgotten as a number were also present and participated in the fun. The pastor was presented with a number of gifts as a pleasant memento of the occasion.

Congratulations Brother Pete and here is hoping for many more anniversaries!

Worth Men Organize

There was a meeting of the men of Worth, Thursday evening, Nov. 4th at the Church for the purpose of discussing the needs of the community. Dr. Beck of Evanston was the speaker of the evening. He gave a very interesting talk on community development and the problems which face a developing community like Worth. He brought out the point that never in the history of this community will such a group of men have the opportunity that those present faced. He said they alone could determine the future of the community. He illustrated his talk by a diagram which made it very interesting. It was an exceptional opportunity for us to have him with us, for he is one of the best authorities in the country on Community Development.

Following the talk there was a short business meeting at which the men decided to organize for the purpose of carrying out the idea. Dr. Beck outlined in his talk. They decided to call the organization "The Goodfellowship Club" with the men of Worth as eligible members. Mr. Harold Ferrin was elected president, Mr. Tesnow, vice-president and Mr. Rolfe, secretary-treasurer. The charter members of the club are: Mr. Ferrin, Mr. Tesnow, Mr. Rolfe, Harry Woods, L. Daniels, A. Crandall, C. Tobey, L. MacCauley, E. Preller, H. Stewart, C. Bishop, P. Sanders, P. Bishop, R. Wilson and W. Little.

They plan to meet twice a month on Thursday night for fellowship and discussion of the problems which confront the community. It is planned to bring in a series of good speakers to address them on the various problems which confront them. They will also take trips to other communities to see what they are doing to solve their problems.

They feel the time has come for us to come out of our shells and all move together toward the common good of all. The day of petty politics and factional backbiting is past. We are now out to put Worth on the map.

New Lenox to Have New State Bank; Will Also Incorporate Village

New Lenox has showed a decided growth the past several years and added to the real estate development a business growth is next in line. A new state bank is the latest move in that line.

A permit for a charter for the New Lenox State Bank has been issued.

Application for the charter was made by Attorney H. Rehn of Joliet at the request of a number of New Lenox farmers and business men.

The bank is being organized with a capital stock of $25,000. Stock in the bank will be sold in 250 shares of $100 par value each. The organizers of the bank are Henry A. Fink, Supervisor Fred Francis, Joseph Kestel, Seward W. Batson, and John C. Urech.

A building will be erected in the village for the bank quarters and stock in the bank sold to residents of the community. A lot between the Fink and Sinclair properties is much in favor as the bank site it is said. Most of the stock has been already subscribed it is reported.

Organization of the bank will give New Lenox its first financial institution.

The opening of a subdivision on the south of New Lenox and Brookwood on the north has been a big factor in the upbuilding of New Lenox. George J. Hacker, Mayor of Mokena and cashier of the Mokena bank, has built up Brookwood with many beautiful new homes and the past summer has built a palatial home for himself there and expects to make New Lenox his future residence it is reported. This, coupled with the fact that many other new homes have and are being built and the extension of gas to the village, has brought many new comers here so that the sleepy little village of 25 years ago has all at once grown to be a bustling village of commercial activity and all of this has caused the progressive citizens to visualize the New Lenox of to-morrow to be in need of city conveniences and therefore are now making arrangements to have the village incorporated and to elect village officers. New Lenox has gas, electric light and power, a concrete highway and the best of railroad transportation. New Lenox makes an ideal manufacturing site as four railroads, the Rock Island, Wabash, Michigan Central and E. J. E. railroads pass thru this township and all near to the village. The future holds much for New Lenox and the town will have a place in the sun.

If New Lenox progresses as rapidly within the next five years as it has in the past it will be well on the way toward being a young city. No finer residence place can be found in the state than here.

Diphtheria Pointers

Frankfort one of our neighboring villages, already has one case of diphtheria.

Last year diphtheria killed 407 children in Illinois. Last year 5006 children in Illinois were sick with diphtheria. This was all due to neglect because diphtheria can positively be prevented. Three injections of Toxin-antitoxin given at one week intervals will make individuals immune to diphtheria just the same as vaccination will make them immune to small pox. By a prick of a needle in the forearm a physician can tell whether any individual will catch diphtheria if exposed.

The State Department of Public Health is now putting on a campaign to wipe out diphtheria in Illinois. This department will furnish toxin-antitoxin free to all citizens of the state and the only expense will be the fee of your local physician who administers it.

It does no immediate good to give toxin-antitoxin to an individual after he has been exposed because it usually takes from 3 to 6 months for immunity to become established. After definite exposure to diphtheria or in the face of an epidemic individuals may temporarily be protected by giving them antitoxin. This product gives immediate protection but the immunity lasts but a few weeks and in no sense serves the purpose of Toxin-antitoxin.

The State Department of Public Health urges that every individual from the age of six months up see their doctor at once and be made immune.

The man's hatred was different from the beast's, but perhaps even more implacable. With McTaggart it was not hatred alone. There was mixed with it an indefinable and superstitious fear, a thing he laughed at, a thing he cursed at, but which clung to him as surely as the scent of his trail clung to Baree's nose. Baree no longer stood for the animal alone; he stood for Nepeese. That was the thought that insisted in growing in McTaggart's ugly mind. He had not ceased to hate Baree; he still hated him as he had never hated a man, but he had an even greater reason now for wanting to kill him. It came to him first in his sleep, in a restless dream, and after that it lived, and lived—the thought that the spirit of Nepeese was guiding Baree in the ravaging of his trap-line!

It was in January that McTaggart caught his first glimpse of Baree. He had placed his rifle against a tree, and was a dozen feet away from it at the time. It was as if Baree knew, and had come to taunt him; for when the Factor suddenly looked up Baree was standing out clear from the dwarf spruce not twenty yards away from him, his white fangs gleaming and his eyes burning like coals. For a space McTaggart stared as if turned into stone. It was Baree. He recognized the white star, the white-tipped ear, and his heart thumped like a hammer in his breast. Very slowly he began to creep toward his rifle. His hand was reaching for it when like a flash Baree was gone.

This gave McTaggart his new idea. He blazed himself a fresh trail through the forests parallel with his trap-line but at least five hundred yards distant from it. Wherever a trap or deadfall was set this new trail struck sharply in, like the point of a V, so that he could approach his line unobserved. By this strategy he believed that in time he was sure of getting a shot at the dog. Again it was the man who was reasoning, and again it was the man who was defeated. The first day that McTaggart followed his new trail Baree also struck that trail. For a little while it puzzled him. Three times he cut back and forth between the old and the new trail. Then there was no doubt. The new trail was the fresh trail, and he followed in the footsteps of the Factor from Lac Bain. McTaggart did not know what was happening until his return trip, when he saw the story told in the snow. Baree had visited each trap, and without exception he had approached each time at the point of the inverted V. After a week of futile hunting, of lying in wait, of approaching at every point of the wind—a period during which McTaggart had twenty times cursed himself into fits of madness, another idea came to him. It was like an inspiration, and so simple that it seemed almost inconceivable that he had not thought of it before.

He hurried back to Post Lac Bain. The second day after he was on the trail at dawn. This time he carried a pack in which there were a dozen strong wolf traps freshly dipped in beaver oil, and a rabbit which he had snared the previous night. Now and then he looked anxiously at the sky. It was clear until late in the afternoon, when banks of dark clouds began rolling up from the east. Half an hour later a few flakes of snow began falling. McTaggart let one of these drop on the back of his mitten hand, and examined it closely. It was soft and downy, and he gave vent to his satisfaction. It was what he wanted. Before morning there would be six inches of freshly fallen snow covering the trails.

He stopped at the next trap-house and quickly set to work. First he threw away the poisoned bait in the "house" and replaced it with the rabbit. Then he began setting his wolf traps. Three of these he placed close to the "door" of the house, through which Baree would have to reach for the bait. The remaining nine he scattered at intervals of a foot or sixteen inches apart, so that when he was done a veritable cordon of traps guarded the house. He did not fasten the chains, but let them lay loose in the snow. If Baree got into one trap he would get into others and there would be no use of toggles. His work done, McTaggart hurried on through the thickening twilight of winter night to his shack. He was highly elated. This time there could be no such thing as failure. He had sprung every trap on his way from Lac Bain. In none of those traps would Baree find anything to eat until he came to the "nest" of twelve wolf traps.

Seven inches of snow fell that night, and the whole world seemed turned into a wonderful white robe. Like billows of feathers the snow hung to the trees and shrubs; it gave tall white caps to the rocks, and underfoot it was so light that a cartridge dropped from the hand sank to the bottom of it. Baree was on the trap-line early. He was more cautious this morning, for there was no longer the scent or snowshoe track of McTaggart to guide him. He struck the first trap about halfway between Lac Bain and the shack in which the Factor was waiting. It was sprung, and there was no bait. Trap after trap he visited, and all of them he found sprung, and all without bait. He sniffed the air suspiciously, striving vainly to catch the tang of smoke, a whiff of the man-smell. Along toward noon he came to the "nest"—the twelve treacherous traps waiting for him with gaping jaws half a foot under the blanket of snow. For a full minute he stood well outside the danger line, sniffing the air, and listening. He saw the rabbit, and his jaws closed with a hungry click. He moved a step nearer. Still he was suspicious—for some strange and inexplicable reason he sensed danger. Anxiously he sought for it with his nose, his eyes, and his ears. And all about him there was a great silence and a great peace. His jaws clicked again. He whined softly. What was it stirring him? Where was the danger he could neither see nor smell? Slowly he circled about the trap-house; three times he circled round it, each circle drawing him a little nearer—until at last his feet almost touched the outer cordon of traps. Another minute he stood still; his ears flattened; in spite of the rich aroma of the rabbit in his nostrils something was drawing him away. In another moment he would have gone, but there came suddenly—and from directly behind the trap-house—a fierce little rat-like squeak, and the next instant Baree saw an ermine whiter than the snow tearing hungrily at the flesh of the rabbit. He forgot his growled premonition of danger. He growled fiercely, but his plucky little rival did not budge from his feast.

And then he sprang straight into the "nest" that Bush McTaggart had made for him. The next morning Bush McTaggart heard the clanking of a chain when he was still a good quarter of a mile from the "nest." Was it a lynx? Was it a fisher-cat? Was it a wolf or a fox? Or was it Baree? He half ran the rest of the distance, and at last he came to where he could see, and his heart leaped into his throat when he saw that he had caught his enemy. He approached, holding his rifle ready to fire if by any chance the dog should free himself. Baree lay on his side, panting from exhaustion and quivering with pain. A hoarse cry of exultation burst from McTaggart's lips as he drew nearer and looked at the snow. It was packed hard for many feet about the trap-house, where Baree had struggled, and it was red with blood. The blood had come mostly from Baree's jaws. They were dripping now as he glared at his enemy. The steel jaws hidden under the snow had done their merciless work well. One of his forefeet was caught well up toward the first joint; both hind feet were caught; a fourth trap had closed on his flank, and in tearing the jaws loose he had pulled off a patch of skin half as big as McTaggart's hand. The snow told the story of his desperate fight all through the night; his bleeding jaws showed how vainly he had tried to break the imprisoning steel with his teeth. He was panting. His eyes were bloodshot. But even now, after all his hours of agony, neither his spirit nor his courage were broken. When he saw McTaggart he made a lunge to his feet, almost instantly crumpling down into the snow again. But his forefeet were braced. His head and chest remained up, and the snarl that came from his throat was tigerish in its ferocity. Here, at last—not more than a dozen feet from him—was the one thing in all the world that he hated more than he hated the wolf breed. And again he was helpless, as he had been helpless that other time in the rabbit snare.

The fierceness of his snarl did not disturb Bush McTaggart now. He saw how utterly the other was at his mercy, and with an exultant laugh he leaned his rifle against a tree, pulled off his mittens, and began loading his pipe. This was the triumph he had looked forward to, the torture he had waited for. In his soul there was a hatred as deadly as Baree's, the hatred that a man might have for a man. He had expected to send a bullet through the dog. But this was better—to watch him dying by inches, to taunt him as he would have taunted a human, to walk about him so that he could hear the clank of the traps and see the fresh blood drip as Baree twisted his tortured legs and body to keep facing him. It was a splendid vengeance. He was so engrossed in it that he did not hear the approach of snowshoes behind him. It was a voice—a man's voice—that turned him round suddenly.

The man was a stranger, and he was younger than McTaggart by ten years. At least he looked no more than thirty-five or six, even with the short growth of blonde beard he wore. He was of that sort that the average man would like at a glance; boyish, and yet a man; with clear eyes that looked out frankly from under the rim of his fur cap, a form lithe as an Indian's, and a face altogether that did not bear the hard lines of the wilderness. Yet McTaggart knew before he had spoken that this man was of the wilderness, that he was heart and soul a part of it. His cap was of fisher-skin. He wore a windproof coat of softly tanned caribou skin, belted at the waist with a long sash, and Indian fringed. The inside of the coat was furred. He was traveling on the long, slender bush-country snowshoe; his pack, strapped over the shoulders, was small and compact; he was carrying his rifle in a cloth jacket. And from cap to snowshoes he was travel-worn. McTaggart, at a guess, would have said that he had traveled a thousand miles in the last few weeks. It was not this thought that sent the strange and chilling thrill up his back; but the sudden fear that in some strange way a whisper of the truth might have found its way down into the south—the truth of what had happened on the Gray Loon—and that this travel-worn stranger wore under his caribou-skin coat the badge of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. For that instant it was almost a terror that possessed him, and he stood mute.

The stranger had uttered only an amazed exclamation before. Now he said, with his eyes on Baree: "God save us, but you've got the poor devil in a right proper mess, haven't you?" There was something in the voice that reassured McTaggart. It was not a suspicious voice, and he saw that the stranger was more interested in the captured animal than in himself. He drew a deep breath. "A trap robber," he said. The stranger was staring still more closely at Baree. He thrust his gun stock downward in the snow and drew nearer to him. "God save us again—a dog!" he exclaimed.

From behind, McTaggart was watching the man with the eyes of a ferret. "Yes, a dog," he answered. "A wild dog, half wolf at least. He's robbed me of a thousand dollars' worth of fur this winter."

The stranger squatted himself before Baree, with his mittened hands resting on his knees, and his white teeth gleaming in a half smile. "You poor devil!" he said sympathetically. "So you're a trap robber, eh? An outlaw? And—the Police have got you! And—God save us once more—they haven't played you a very square game!"

He rose and faced McTaggart. "I had to set a lot of traps like that," the Factor apologized, his face reddening slightly under the steady gaze of the stranger's blue eyes. Suddenly his animus rose. "And he's going to die there, inch by inch. I'm going to let him starve, and rot in the traps, to pay for all he's done." He picked up his gun, and added, with his eyes on the stranger and his finger ready at the trigger, "I'm Bush McTaggart, the Factor at Lac Bain. Are you bound that way, m'sieu?"

"A few miles. I'm bound up-country—beyond the Barrens." McTaggart felt again the strange thrill. "Government?" he asked. The stranger nodded. "The—Police, perhaps," persisted McTaggart.

"Why, yes—of course—the Police," said the stranger, looking straight into the Factor's eyes. "And now, m'sieu, as a very great courtesy to the Law I'm going to ask you to send a bullet through that beast's head before we go on. Or shall I?"

"It's the law of the line," said McTaggart, "to let a trap robber rot in the traps. And that beast was a devil. Listen—"

Swiftly, and yet leaving out none of the fine detail, he told of the weeks and months of strife between himself and Baree; of the maddening futility of all his tricks and schemes and the still more maddening cleverness of the beast he had at last succeeded in trapping.

"He was a devil—that clever," he cried fiercely when he had finished. "And now—would you shoot him, or let him lie there and die by inches, as the devil should?"

A busy housewife came into the sitting room, a determined look in her eyes.

"I shall have to punish those children," she began.

"What have the little beggars been up to now?" asked father, looking up from his newspaper.

"Why, they've made a mess of my sewing room," explained his wife. "Needles, reels of cotton, scissors—everything had been hidden away in the most unexpected places. It's exasperating."

Her husband laid down his paper and smiled.

"I did that," he said calmly. "You tidied up my desk so beautifully the other day that I thought it only fair to return the compliment. So I tidied up your sewing-room."

CALEB'S FAITHFULNESS REWARDED

LESSON TEXT—Josh. 14:6-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—I wholly followed the Lord my God.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Brave Spy Rewarded.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Reward of Service.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Caleb, the Courageous.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Blessings That Follow Whole-hearted Obedience.

I. Elements of Caleb's Character.

1. Independence of spirit (Num. 13:30).

Though the multitude clamored to follow the report of the ten, Caleb determined to stand alone. This is an element in human character which is highly important. One should stand for what he knows to be right, regardless of the sentiment of the crowd.

2. True to convictions (Josh. 14:9, cf. Num. 14:6-9).

What Caleb knew and felt he spoke out. He did not wait for the opinion of others and then modify his to suit the populace. A true man and one who can be trusted will be loyal to his convictions.

3. Unselfish (14:12).

He did not ask for some easy place. He did not wish to thrust someone else into the place of difficulty. He wanted to go into the place where it would require fighting in order to drive out the giants which were in the land.

4. Courageous (Josh. 14:12, cf. 13:30).

This courage he displayed when he insisted that they were able to go up from Kadesh-Barnea and take possession of the land. Forty-five years have elapsed since that time. He would be considered an old man now, but still he desired that place for an inheritance which would require some fighting. He said, "I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me, as my strength was then, even so is my strength now for war."

5. Loyalty to God (Josh. 14:8, cf. Num. 14:24).

He served God with a whole-hearted devotion; indeed, this is the way to his character.

II. Caleb Laying Claim to His Inheritance (vv. 6-12).

Caleb did not come alone to make his claim. He came in the presence of the children of Judah, lest he be suspected of taking advantage. He did not wish to wait until after the lot was cast, for God had already given a certain portion to him. It was useless to ask God to decide a matter which He had already determined. The basis of his plea was:

1. The ground of his service (vv. 6-8).

He had endangered his life in spying out the land—had gone to Hebron when the giants were there. He brought back a true report when his brethren were all against him. He bore his testimony and insisted that they go up and take the land though to do so incurred the displeasure of his brethren and necessitated his standing practically alone.

2. On the ground of the oath of Moses to him (v. 9).

Joshua had respect for Moses, and was bound to follow the counsels of his faithful master whom he had succeeded. This plea was effective.

3. On the ground of God's providential dealing with him (vv. 10-12).

God had preserved him in bodily health. Though he was now eighty-five years old, his natural forces were not abated. He said, "I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me, as my strength was then, even so is my strength now for war."

III. Joshua Giving the Inheritance to Caleb (13:14, 15).

1. Joshua blessed Caleb (v. 13).

He not only acquiesced in Caleb's claim, but bestowed the blessing of God upon him in it.

2. The inheritance given (vv. 13, 14).

Hebron was the name of the inheritance. The name Hebron means fellowship. It was given because Caleb had fully followed the Lord. Only those who fully follow the Lord can enjoy fellowship with Him. Though Caleb now legally possessed Hebron, it was necessary for him to fight to drive out the giants who infested it. In Christ we have an inheritance which God has given us. We, too, must fight because the enemy is unwilling to relinquish his claim upon it.

The KITCHEN CABINET

A laugh is worth a hundred groans in any market.—Charles Lamb.

GOOD CHEER FROM THE COFFEE POT

There's no surer way to make a hit at breakfast than by serving a delicious cup of coffee, steaming hot, and properly "creamed." It makes everyone feel kindly toward the world in general—and generally toward the coffee-brewer.

First—an economy suggestion about the "creaming." Try condensed milk (sweetened)—for a week, and see if you don't find the coffee just as smooth and flavorful as with pure cream. And such a saving! Some authorities claim condensed milk is twice as rich and full of cream as the ordinary kind, and besides it contains just the right amount of sugar to suit the taste of most people in coffee. A further convenience—condensed milk keeps without ice even after the can is opened, so it's easy to have a constant supply, without planning for each particular day.

About the actual brewing—it has been often said that Americans—and the English—do not make as good coffee as do Continentals. In France, noted for its excellent coffee, the drip or filter method is the favorite.

And this method is also the one approved—as best for both flavor and healthfulness—by the department of biology and public health of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology—as the result of special research.

Here are the directions for drip coffee: Place the fully ground coffee, one heaping tablespoonful for each cupful desired, in the coffee filter. Heat the coffee pot. Bring the water in the tea kettle to boiling point and when ready to serve, pour the measured amount of water, one cupful for each tablespoonful of coffee used, over the ground coffee in the container. The filter should be of such shape and character as to permit rapid filtration. The coffee should be served immediately.

Note.—The coffee must be finely ground. Ordinary ground coffee will not do at all for this method. Care must be taken to heat the pot thoroughly before making. Then keep it off the fire.—Mildred Maddocks Bentley, formerly Director of Good House-keeping.

YE OLD GOODIES

The well liked Sally Lunn which has been famous for years in England was named for the woman who originated that delicious hot bread. This was a favorite breakfast bread of our Country.

Sally Lunn.—Take one quart of flour, four eggs, one-half cupful of melted butter, one-half of a yeast cake softened in one-fourth cupful of warm water, one teaspoonful of salt, and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Beat the eggs until light, add one cupful of tepid milk and water, the sugar, yeast, and beat in the flour. When perfectly smooth let rise in a well buttered bowl. When well risen, cut or stir down, let rise again, then mold and put into muffin pans in which they are to bake. When very light bake in a moderate oven until well browned. Serve hot, broken open and spread with butter.

Mincemeat.—Stew four pounds of lean beef and two pounds of suet in boiling water until the meat is tender. Chop the meat fine and add twice as much chopped apple—Baldwin is one of the good flavored apples—add three quinces cored but not peeled, and then chopped; three pounds of sugar, two cupfuls of New Orleans molasses, two quarts of cider, four pounds of seeded raisins, three pounds of currants, one-half pound of finely cut citron, a tablespoonful of nutmeg, the same of clove, two grated nutmegs, and salt to taste. Add the grated rind of two lemons and two oranges. Cook all together in a pint of the stock for two hours at a simmering temperature. Can while hot and seal for winter use.

Butter Scotch.—Boil together one cupful of sugar, one-fourth cupful of molasses, one tablespoonful of vinegar and one-half cupful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of water. When the mixture becomes brittle when dropped in cold water, turn into a well buttered pan, and when slightly cool mark in squares.

Velvet Molasses Candy.—Take one cupful each of molasses and boiling water, three cupfuls of sugar, and three tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Put on to boil and at the first boiling add one-half teaspoonful of cream of tartar, boil until brittle when tried in cold water. Stir constantly during the last of the cooking. When nearly done add one-half cupful of butter and one-fourth teaspoonful of soda. Pour into buttered pan and cool. Pull, and while pulling add such flavoring as desired—lemon and vanilla with a few drops of either oil of wintergreen or peppermint is well liked.

Many Say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps Keep Them Fit to Work

8,549,511 women would be a vast army. According to the 1920 Census of Manufactures, that is the number of women and girls employed in all trades in the United States.

Napoleon said, "An army travels on its stomach." This army of women travels on its general health. Every working girl knows that time lost through illness seldom is paid for and seldom can be made up. Employers demand regularity. If she wants to keep her job or hopes for a better one, she must guard her health.

Atlanta, Ga.—"My system was weak and run-down, and I was tired. I was this way for five years or more. I read your advertisement in the papers and I decided to try your medicine, the Vegetable Compound, but I did not begin to take it regularly until after I was married. I got so much good from it that I feel fine and have gained in weight. I work in a broom shop, but my work is not so hard on me now, and I keep my own house, and work my garden, too. I am telling all my friends of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how it has helped me."—Mrs. W. M. BAILEY, R. F. D. No. 5, Box 27, Atlanta, Georgia.

Parkville, Mo.—"I am proud to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was so ill that I could not lie down at night. Then I got my husband to go to the store and buy me a bottle of Lydia E. I took six or eight bottles and was able to do all my housework, washing and ironing, take care of my five boys, and tend to my chickens and garden, where before I had to hire my washing and part of my housework."—Mrs. ANNA COLE, R. VOGUE FOR VELVET REIGNS; RICHLY FURRED CLOTH COAT

IT IS a velvet-inspired world in which lady finds herself this season. Velvet for frocks, velvet for wraps, velvet for hats and velvet even for shoes—thus has the enchantment of velvet completely captured the mode. And now that the woman of fashion is to be velvet enrobed, she is asked to take her choice between regal dress of velvet all-black which shall scintillate with rhinestone embellishment, or frocks whose color-glorify declares that "beauty unadorned is adorned the most."

Color, ever of irresistible appeal, reaches a climax of loveliness in the supple-as-chiffon velvets, which are just now proving such a delight to the stylist. Simplicity is the keynote of the charming velvet dress in the rather than the hem borderings which were so universal last winter. The new trend is expressed in huge collars which develop into revers which extend down each side of the front to the very hemline. The ultra-smart woolen coat in the picture, which is luxuriously furred in wolf, carries out the front-opening trimming in a conspicuously unique way, by extending the collar into revers which form a triangular section at each corner. The sleeve also emphasizes the tendency toward very deep fur cuff effects, reaching half way up the arm. The importance of fantastic fur cuffs on cloth coats is one of the really new features of the mode. In accord with fashion's command the shoes which are worn with this sumptuous coat to-picture. Ample width and irregular hemline is achieved through shirring at the side which is caught at the waist, giving a touch of blouseness. Nearly every other evening frock has a suggestion of pink in its effect. This particular gown is in a refined dull rose.

Leading in lustrous chiffon velvets are the fuchsia and red tones; especially is the fashionist exploiting the new eggplant color. Pinkish beige is another favorite hue and many young girls are choosing pale blue for their evening frocks of velvet. However, select any color and you will make no mistake for the new velvets present a galaxy of rainbow shades. A pleasing together with the purse which this smartly attired woman is carrying, all harmonize.

Most every sort of fur is used to trim the worsted coat. It is this extensive variety of furs together with the beauty of the woollens they trim which is competing with the all-fur coat for honors. New arrivals among smooth furs embellishing the cloth coats stress beige and white spotted calfskin, pony and unshaven lamb. Long-haired furs emphasize red fox, also wolf dyed to blend with the cloaking it trims. Quite a few coats show a lining of spotted leopard either real or simulating the genuine.

"APPLESAUCE" WHAT MAKES THE WORLD GO 'ROUND

What makes the world go 'round? Is it Love, Money, Talents, Genius? It's none of these—it's "Applesauce!"

That's the name of the clever American comedy, that run for a year at Cohan's Grand theatre, Chicago, now known as the "4 Cohan's," and which previous to that time, ran two solid seasons in New York, and is to be offered by the Earl Ross players at the Orpheum Theatre at Joliet, beginning Sunday.

Allan Dinehart and Claiborne Foster, two of the cleverest performers on the stage today starred in the piece during its metropolitan run; while in the Doss company are players, equally adapted to the roles.

"Applesauce" means "banana oil," as "Ma" explains, in the first act. It is the oil that is poured on troubled waters; it's the kind word here, the compliment there, the bit of blarney, flattery, bunk or what ever it may be called, but Americans now call it "applesauce."

The play has to do with an only daughter of a kindly mother and a peevish old father, whose bark is worse than his bite. He wants daughter to marry the "Catch" of the town—a fellow with money, poor taste in clothes and of a stingy temperament. Daughter, however, loves a young chap whose only asset is lots of personality and an abundance of "applesauce" which he passes out in wholesale lots. You know he's never going to be much of a success, through his own efforts, but you love him—and so does daughter.

Which one does she marry? How does it come about and how does it turn out? This is the basis for this snappy smart, "wise-cracking comedy of today, guaranteed to please patrons of the Orpheum. matinee, the oss players are presenting "The Whole Town's Talking," a play by the authors of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." It is playing to capacity houses—and pleasing everyone.

Cutting Down Corn Surplus

(Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation)

Whether you prefer your corn nicely buttered on the ear, or in the form of roast pork with fried apples, there are on the average 25½ bushels of corn coming to each person in the United States every year, according to experts of the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. In 1925 there was a bit more; this year there will probably be a few ears less apiece but plenty for all of us just the same.

Less than a fifth of all this corn leaves the farm. Excluding a small fraction of the best grade that is kept out for seed purposes, 81% of those 2,850,000,000 bushels runs around on legs in the following forms: Hogs, 50.3%; horses, 24.5%; cattle, 19.2%; poultry, 3.1% and sheep, 0.9%.

Then He Understood

A little Noodlesha (Kan.) boy, according to the Sun, was shown a drop of water through a powerful microscope, and was impressed at the tiny objects which he was told were microbes. "I know now," he said, "what bites you when you drink soda water."

ORLAND

ORLAND M. E. NOTES

Our Bible school is increasing in attendance but our goal now is 150 in regular attendance every Sunday. This is within easy reach if we just "stretch a little harder".

Morning worship Nov. 14 at the hour of 10:30. This morning we have an unusual opportunity. Miss Minnie Leisptorf of Worth, General Superintendent of the Sunday school of the Worth Community Church and an official board member of that church will speak on "What Has Happened to the Church at Worth."

She will give this experience from the standpoint of a layman. Do not miss this opportunity.

Sunday evening: piano recital from 7:15 to 7:30. What did you think of the "innovation" last Sunday evening? There were several who pronounced last Sunday evening's discussion the "best meeting ever held in our church". Are you getting in on these discussions? If not, you are certainly losing something both interesting and vital. Next Sunday evening the pastor will lead a discussion which has reference to "God in the Bible". How do you find God in your daily life? If you do not find Him—then what can you live for? The testimony of human experience is that to leave God out of our lives is to live not only on a low level but to live a meaningless life. What is your experience?

On Sunday morning, November 21st the pastor will give his next sermon in the series on "What We Most Need and How To Get It". We have an unusual treat in store for us Sunday evening, Nov. 21st. The folks from Worth will come to Orland to repay our visit to their church recently. Rev. Ray Bond of Chicago is to give the address of the evening, and Rev. Paul Sanders will conduct the worship service. We are expecting the choir from Worth to be with us. Do not overlook this service when our friends will be with us.

Dr. and Mrs. L. B. Roubadeaux of Reddick, Illinois were Saturday night and Sunday morning guest at the parsonage the last week end. Rev. Mr. Setterlund was formerly the doctor's pastor and always appreciates a visit from his former family doctor and most welcome "pal."

The parsonage again has sick ones. Both Gerald and Bobbie will be compelled to be away from school for a few days as yet being on the "sick list".

A letter recently received at the parsonage from Rev. and Mrs. M. S. Collins, formerly pastor and of the Orland M. E. church says they are enjoying life at Morgantown, West Virginia, where Rev. Mr. Collins is Director of the Wesley Foundation at the University of West Virginia. Indications are that Rev. Collins will build a great "Foundation" at the State University there. They desired to be remembered to all their Orland friends.

Many farmers around Orland are opposed to hunting on their farms and are putting up "No Hunting Allowed" signs.

St. Michael's Church, Orland, Ill

"The Holy Hour for the First Friday was kept at St. Michael's from eight to nine. The especial intention for which the members of the Sacred Heart League pray, this month, is "native missionary clergy. Rev. Wm. A. Gorey spoke briefly and pointedly on that subject.

Sunday was communion for the Altar and Rosary Society. On this Sunday the members receive in a body. Many new members were enrolled. The official badge of the church, for this Society, was distributed. A meeting was called for Tuesday afternoon.

The Holy name Society also received the official badge. The Communion Sunday, for the men's sodality is the second Sunday of the month.

The congregation is interested to know that their former pastor, Rev. E. J. Zurlinden, S. J., is stationed at the Sacred Heart Church on 19th and Peoria street, Chicago. This Parish supports a school of five hundred pupils.

Two of the visitors at church Sunday, were Mr. W. Gorey and son.

The banns of Miss Augusta Stefens and Mr. Robert Cure were published for the first time.

Mr. L. Doctor has put the parish cemetery in order and those who own lots therein are requested to make them neat for the winter.

The Sunday School class has been registering a ninety per cent attendance.

Her Recognition

Small Elizabeth and her mother were walking down the street when they saw an urchin approaching them. Elizabeth stuck out her tongue. When they had gone on, her mother inquired "Why did you stick out your tongue at that little boy we just passed." There was a pause while Elizabeth considered. "Why?" she replied, at length. "Why, mother, to show him I recognized him!"

YOUNGEST STAR TO APPEAR IN THREE DIFFERENT FORMS OF STAGECRAFT

Within the month, or about December 1, George Jessel, one of the youngest stars of the American stage, will have the unusual experience of appearing in three different forms of stagecraft in as many local theatres at the same time. Having been here less than a year ago as a principal, one of many in a Winter Garden divertissement, the young hero now finds himself starred in three loop theatres, an achievement seldom if ever attained by any other actor before.

At the moment, the versatile young man is appearing at the Harris Theatre in a tragedy-comedy, "The Jazz Singer" and his shadow is flickering in a movie comedy called "Private Izzy Murphy", regarded as one of the funniest of the funnies seen hereabouts in many months.

On top of all this, the boyish comedian-tragedian-pantomimist is co-starring with Al Jolson, Elsie Janis, the Howard Bros., and others on the Vitaphone prologue which Warner Bros., will present at the Woods Theatre early in December in conjunction with Syd Chaplain's "The Better Ole". This bill will run simultaneously with the Barrymore-Vitaphone program now current at McVickers.

Still in his late twenties, young Mr. Jessel is already one of the most actively sought after actors in America. His playing which will embrace the whole gamut of the popular forms of entertainment, is contracted for the next two years. Following his season in "The Jazz Singer" he will go to Hollywood to make another picture, in between finding time enough to record again for Vitaphone.

The Relation of the Parent to the School

Schools have not always existed. All education used to be conducted in the home. As times changed and demands upon the home grew heavier and the educational demands upon the individual increased the citizens came together and decided to delegate some of the responsibility for their children's education to a teacher or person especially trained for this work. Thus, a teacher or public servant continues to be such as long as a part of the child's education is carried on outside of the home. Instructors are vitally interested in the education of our boys and girls and are willing to do everything in their power to help us educate our children.

We, the parents and teachers, must work together in solving our common problems. We are both working with the same material, the child, and should both be trying to reach the same goal. We should not blindly work apart. For example, some parents succeed in training their children to be courteous and kind while others do not. Both sets of children live together about six hours of every day and on account of this become very much alike. The successful parent in this case can only say that the school has ruined everything that he has accomplished in six years of hard work. On the other hand the English teacher may have trained the children too use correct English at school. When the children reach home they immediately revert back to their old speech habits and the English teachers work has been in vain. The parents and teachers must have the same aims in view and must work together in bringing about results.

How can we best work together so as to accomplish our desired end?

The problem of education is both a public and private matter. It is public in the sense that the public should set the general goals to be reached by all the children. These goals could be defined and united in the Parent-Teachers' Organization or some similar meeting in which all the citizens conscientiously take part.

Education is a private matter in the sense that it deals with the individual child, and it is the responsibility of each parent to see that his child becomes an asset rather than a burden to society. The child can be made an asset only by developing in him the character traits that society has found desirable. When a problem arises, when a child is discourteous or impudent in the home, when the child gets a low grade or brings home a tale it is usually wise for us to get his point of view on the question, then go to the instructor or instructors and have a conference with them getting all the facts so as to be able to judge fairly. Such a problem is not something to talk over with the neighbors, but is a personal matter that should be settled privately among the parents, the child, and the teacher, who is your assistant. The parents and teachers should have a clear understanding of the child, his accomplishments, his weakness, and his possibilities. They should have definite goals and both work together in setting up these desirable traits in the child.

Often times in the School, just because it is a School, can make certain changes in the child that perhaps no other institution can make. In like manner the church can do certain things for the child because it is the church and home can do certain things that the School and Church cannot do because of the fact it is a home. If there is a lack of unity in the efforts of these institutions, or if one of them fails to do its part properly the result is unsatisfactory and the child often turns out to be a complete failure. For these reasons, if for no others, it is extremely important that we decide what we want and then permit each institution to set about accomplishing this end as its leaders feel the task can be done best with the least waste and the least expense.

Toad's Great Value

Civilization Unjustly Blamed.
Decayed teeth have been found in a skull thousands of years old. Impacted wisdom teeth can be found in skulls taken from the shell mounds around San Francisco bay and exhibited in the ethnological museum of the American colleges. The theory that civilization causes such troubles is no sounder than the decayed molars.

Some form of toad can be found in each state. Toads were formerly more numerous. They are now becoming rare, for they are destroyed by all classes of vertebrates and by drought in summer and severe cold in winter.
Their value to man lies in the number of insects and other invertebrates which they eat.

Women, Don't Suffer!

Kokomo, Ind.—"I was suffering with all kinds of aches and pains—head, back and side, dizzy spells and nervousness. The doctors tried to help me and I tried all kinds of remedies but got little relief. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I hesitated on account of the failure of other treatments, but at last I tried it. One bottle helped me so much I got two more, and by the time I had taken them I was feeling like a different woman. It had relieved me of all aches and pains and made me well."—Mrs. Roy Griffey, 1225 W. Taylor St. All dealers.

Keep Fit!

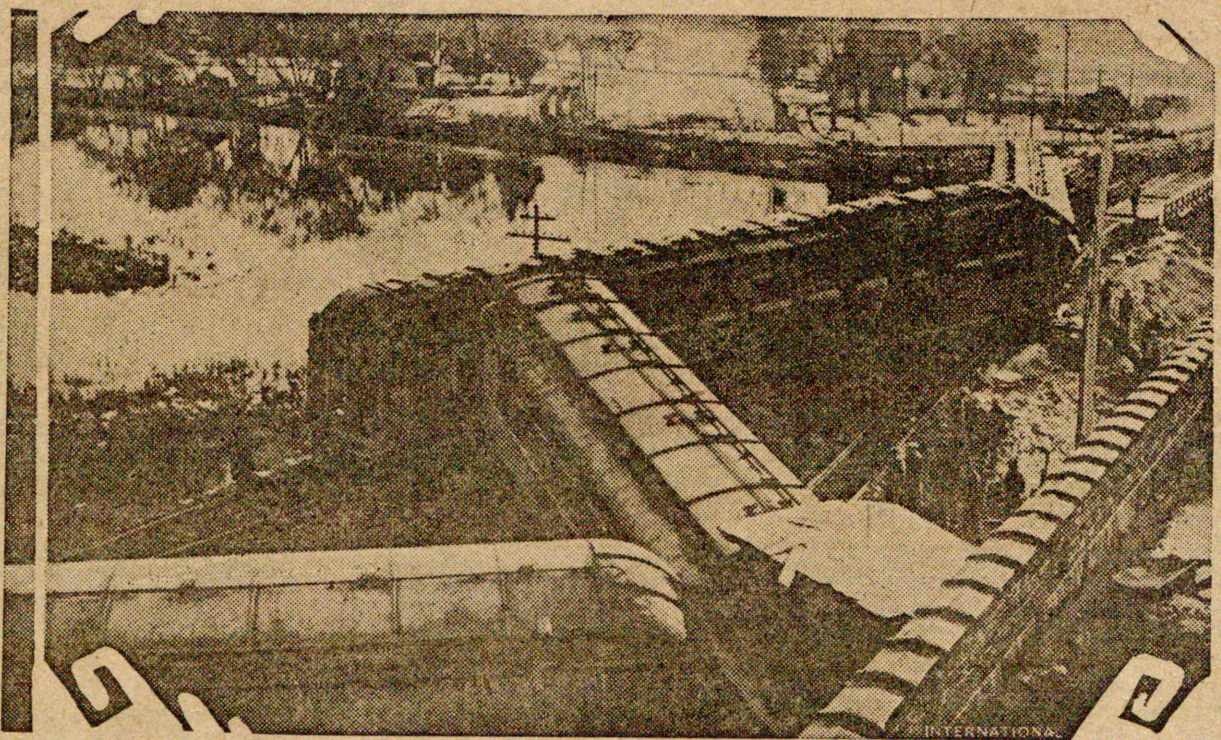

Good Health Requires Good Elimination.

To be well, you must keep the blood stream free from impurities. If the kidneys lag, allowing body poisons to accumulate, a toxic condition is created. One is apt to feel dull, languid, tired and aching. A nagging backache is sometimes a symptom, with drowsy headaches and dizzy spells. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. If you have reason to suspect improper kidney functioning, try Doan's Pills—a tested stimulant diuretic. Users praise them throughout the United States. Ask your neighbor!

If Kidneys Act Bad Take Salts

Says Backache Often Means You Have Not Been Drinking Enough Water

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean that you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water.

FOOTBALL NOTES

Once more this year the Mokena Bluestreaks have won their game and they sure piled up the points the final score being 34 to 7. Eddie White made two touchdowns, one of 46 yards and the other 63 yards. Eddie has finally found his stride and that boy sure can tote a foot ball. Vich Risser added six more points when he circled left and for 52 yards, dodging and twisting till he crossed the goal line. Claude Everett has been handicapped the previous games with a bad cold, but he got going Sunday for two more touchdowns. He ran 30 yards in the second quarter for the first one, and received a long pass for the second one as the game ended. The Teddy Bear's one touchdown was made as the result of a fumble, when their quarterback recovered and ran 80 yards but before he could score he was tackled by Sorensen, who raced after him the length of the field. On the next play, however, they crossed the goal line for their only score. Whittaker was injured toward the last of the game and was carried off the field by fellow players amidst great cheering by the crowd. Many action snap shots were taken and the team hopes they will be favorable. The Bluestreaks will invade New Lenox next Sunday and a good game is promised. The game is to be played at New Lenox.

Toper's Glass
